FURY OF THE STORM.

Much Damage Caused by Flood and Lightning.

SEVERAL FATALITIES REPORTED.

Small Towns in Illinois Fired by Lightning and Completely Wiped Out—The Storm Especially Severe in Eastern Pennsylvania

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 10.—An area of one square mile suffered from Saturday night's cloudburst. The cloud was triangular in shape and emptied its contents right over Monocacy valley, in the very center of the three Bethlehems. The flood reached the second story of houses on Goeppe street, Spruce street, Old Bethlehem; Spring street, West Bethlehem, and Second street, in South Bethlehem. The damage to private property is estimated at $50,000 and to sewers and highways $10,000. That no lives were lost is a miracle. The people in the flooded district are very poor and are suffering for want of assistance. During the storm lightning struck the residence of President Wilbur, of the Lehigh Valley railroad, the municipal building and Troxell's furniture store doing little damage, however.

The funeral cortege of the late Mrs. William Shimer was caught in the storm, returning from the grave. The horses took fright at the pelting rain and ran away. Mrs. Jacob T. Shimer, of West Bethlehem, had her arm and shoulder fractured, and Mrs. Curtis, who was picked up unconscious, is in a precarious condition.

DE KALB, Ills., Sept. 10.—Lightning played havoc among the various small towns of this section on Saturday night. As a result the business portion of Malta, a small town of 900 inhabitants, is in ashes with losses aggregating $50,000. The little settlement of Henrietta was also visited by lightning and completely wiped out. The loss will not prove very extensive. At Caledonia four buildings were struck at different times and each destroyed. At Elmhurst a big barn was struck and totally destroyed. The people had hard work to save the school house, situated near by. Rockford came in for its share of the flames, and in that town three fires were caused by lightning. At Belvidere a physician's stable was struck and consumed together with two horses. Huntley suffered the loss of three buildings, one of which was a stable. In the latter instance four horses were cremated. At Herbert two buildings were burned.

NEW YORK, Sept. [illegible]—The rain storm here was unusually severe. The Third avenue cables gave out and an accident delayed travel on the Brooklyn bridge. The rainfall was the heaviest of the year, amounting to [illegible] inches. William Smith, a fisherman, was killed at Newark Bay by lightning. Lightning also struck the [illegible] and the steamer was [illegible] from the Atlantic Highlands to this city. [illegible] was [illegible] injured, and the passengers were greatly alarmed for a few minutes.

PLATTEVILLE, Wis., Sept. 10.—Never has Platteville been visited by such a severe hailstorm as struck this city. Hail as large as walnuts fell for about an hour, breaking window panes, completely demolishing sky lights and leaving orchards and cornfields devastated as though a cyclone had struck them.

READING, Pa., Sept. 10.—During the heavy storm of Saturday night a new two story school building in this city was undermined by the rush of water and collapsed. Mrs. James Sallade and John Grand were struck by lightning and remained in a state of total paralysis for two hours. They will recover.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 10.—During the heavy thunderstorm lightning struck the porch of a house at Jeannette, fatally injuring Mrs. Mahoney, her daughter Maggie and Mrs. Kreft, a visitor. The women are still living, but are completely paralyzed.

RICHLAND CENTER, Wis., Sept. 10.—The big Muscoda bridge over the river at Muscoda was wrecked by cyclone Saturday night. Several houses were blown down at [illegible]

MRS. AMELIA PLUCKER.

THE WAR IN THE ORIENT.

The Japanese Commander Gives His Reasons for Firing on the Kow Shing.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 10.—The Northern Pacific liner Sikh, from Yokohama, brings interesting advices of the war in the Orient. The reason given by the commander of the Japanese warship Naniwa Kan, when asked why he fired upon the Kow Shing, seeing she was flying the British flag, is now given for the first time, and is certainly pertinent: "Because she was sailing under false colors, was carrying Chinese troops and had been sold to the Chinese government and fully paid for."

Notwithstanding this explanation, the same party which gives it publicity announces that the sum of $750,000 has been agreed to by the Japanese government as reparation for the sinking of Captain Galsworthy's vessel and compensation to those dependent upon the Europeans lost with her.

Both China and Japan are at present keenly alert for articles contraband of war. The Sikh was delayed at Shanghai by a Chinese gunboat, which made an effort to gain possession of the rice portion of her cargo. The British consul objected and the merchantman was allowed to proceed.

China is now hurrying an army of hundreds of thousands of men through northern China to Corea, but as they are subsisting on the products of the country through which they are passing, and most of it is mountainous, it is hard to say what success they will have. The Chinese have been offering great inducements to Europeans and Americans to enter their service, and have secured many. On the other hand the Japanese have no outsiders in any branch of the service.

At Foo Chow a big eighty-ton gun burst, killing several men. It was the largest gun in the fort.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The correspondent of The Times at Shanghai telegraphs as follows: An extraordinary mission has arrived at Tientsin conveying birthday presents from the king of Corea to the dowager empress of China. The mission will proceed to Pekin. A collision between Chinese and Japanese forces occurred near Ping Yang on Sept. 7. The result is not known. The United States warship Monocacy has arrived at Tientsin. The war news which has been received at Tientsin thus far is considered worthless.

Yesterday's Fatalities at Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—Three fatalities occurred in this city yesterday. Harry L. Hassler, of Chambersburg, a printer employed at the state printing house, was found dead in his room, having been asphyxiated by escaping gas. It is supposed that he committed suicide. John Roche, a bartender, fell out of a third story window at the Brannan House and fractured his skull, dying a few hours later. The third case was that of Charles Bretz, an employe of the power house of the East Harrisburg [illegible] who was [illegible] by the flying fragments of [illegible] flywheel. David [illegible], a fireman, sustained serious [illegible] There were also two [illegible] and a number of minor [illegible] yesterday.

These tribes threatened to besiege Fez, which is the present seat of government, headquarters of the [illegible] recognized sultan, Abdul Aziz. The revolt is spreading.

MOVING ON TO PITTSBURG.

Thousands Flocking There to Attend the G. A. R. Encampment.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 10.—"Comrades" and friends have been flocking into Pittsburg all day, taking complete possession of the city. The universal comment of the visitors regarding the decorations and display of patriotism, is that at no time in the past at an encampment has Pittsburg been outdone. The display is lavish, and in the majority of cases, neat and tasty.

Among the noted arrivals are two men from Honolulu. They represent the full membership of the G. A. R. in Hawaii, and were determined to be present at the last encampment which they would likely enjoy.

Governor Pattison and staff arrived this morning.

The first fatality among the veterans to be reported is the sudden death of Comrade Louis Treaster, of McClure, Snyder county, Pa. He was a member of Post 355. On arrival at the post headquarters Treaster was completely exhausted and died of weak heart in five minutes after reaching the building. The remains were taken charge of by friends and will be sent to McClure.

STORY OF WHOLESALE MURDER

Farm Laborers Killed and Their Bodies Robbed by Their Employers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 10.—A story of wholesale murder comes from Poganovka, a village of Samara. Eight farmers living near the village employed twenty-one laborers to help sow their land. The laborers performed their work satisfactorily and were paid the stipulated money. The farmers then conspired to get the money back, and finally decided that their only way of doing so would be to kill the laborers. While the later were enjoying a siesta together they were set upon by the farmers and all killed. The farmers then robbed the bodies and buried them. The absence of the laborers aroused suspicion, and the police investigation led to the speedy arrest of the eight murderers.

END OF A LIFE OF EXILE

The Comte de Paris Passes Away at Stowe House.

HE FOUGHT UNDER M'CLELLAN.

His Gallant Services Won America's Gratitude—Twice Driven Into Exile by His Country—A Historian of the Great Rebellion.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The funeral of the Comte de Paris, who died at Stowe House on Saturday, will take place on Wednesday at Weybridge. At Weybridge there is a Roman Catholic chapel in which the bodies of Louis Philippe and his wife were placed before being transferred to Dreux. It is now believed that the body of the Comte de Paris will, by permission of the French government, be eventually transported to Dreux. At Weybridge the remains of the Comtesse de Nemours, wife of the Duc de Nemours, uncle of the Comte, are buried.

COMTE DE PARIS.

The last sacrament was administered to the Comte de Paris by Mgr. Ahulst, rector of the Catholic institute at Paris, whose mother was one of the ladies in waiting upon the wife of Louis Philippe.

A very large number of messages were dispatched from Stowe House after the death of the Comte de Paris to distant relatives and friends. A telegraphic message was received from a number of French Royalists who met and prayed for the then dying man in the old cathedral of Laval, capital of the Department of Mayenne, saying: "Present to Monsignor le Duc d'Orleans and Madame la Comtesse de Paris our respectful homage."

The wording of this message putting the name of the Duc d'Orleans, eldest son of the Comte de Paris, first shows, it is claimed, that the Royalists of France already regard the Duc d'Orleans as king of France. There are, however, two other pretenders to the throne of France—Don Carlos, Duke of Madrid, and General de Bourbon, who styles himself Duc d'Anjou and who claims the throne. Their pretensions, it may be added, are ridiculed by the press and public of even royalist France.

The death scene was most touching. The Comtesse de Paris closed her husband's eyes and all the princes and princesses in the order of their rank stepped forward and kissed the hand of the dead man.

The body of the Comte de Paris [illegible] he died. The [illegible] arch at the entrance of [illegible] Stowe House was half masted shortly after the comte's death.

The Comte de Paris was born August 24, 1838. When he was but 4 years old his father was killed in a carriage accident. In early infancy his mother led him and his brother into the chamber of deputies, only to be expelled therefrom amid great confusion. Compelled to flee, they found refuge at Eisenach in a country house belonging the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar.

They subsequently joined the exiled king and queen in England. On the death of Louis Philippe in 1850 the comte became the pretender to the French throne. He was educated under the supervision of his mother, who died while he was in his 20th year. Visiting Spain soon afterward he for the first time saw his cousin and future wife, Marie Isabelle, daughter of Duc de Montpensier.

Accompanied by his brother, the Duke de Chartres, his uncle, Prince de Joinville, and his cousin, Pierre Philippe, Duc de Penthievre, the comte came to this country, arriving Sept. 14, 1861. The rebellion was well under way and waiting [illegible]. Although his intentions of entering the [illegible] army were then not generally known, he was received [illegible] on a tour of sightseeing with much warmth [illegible]. Returning from a trip to the [illegible] of the Union, he presented himself to General McClellan [illegible] of the Potomac, and he was [illegible] with his brother, Duc de Chartres, on the general's staff [illegible] Majesty and [illegible] service and [illegible] Associated with [illegible] General Horace Porter.

[illegible] the Franco-Prussian war [illegible] but it was [illegible] however, he obtained a seat in the national assembly and was afterward [illegible] placed on the retired list of the army.

[illegible] the Orleans [illegible] of France [illegible] the Comtesse de Paris [illegible] to the throne.

During his [illegible] in England and Spain the count [illegible] his leisure to historic [illegible] and [illegible] the Spanish estate becoming the center of the family circle of [illegible] relatives. After the downfall of Napoleon one of the first acts of the men who then controlled the destinies of France was to permit the Orleans princes to return to their native country and to restore the estate confiscated by Napoleon III. Some $8,000,000 was voted to them as an indemnity for the revenues they had lost during their long exile. Of this sum the Comte de Paris got his full share, and he also came into possession of his ancestral estate of Eu, near the seaport of Le Treport, in Normandy. Later, however, with his family, he was again expelled.

The Comte de Paris visited this country a second time in 1890 to refresh his memory on the old war scenes. He was received by Collector Erhardt at the port of New York with a welcome in the name of the president of the United States. Enthusiastic demonstrations awaited the visitor everywhere, especially in Philadelphia. A touching episode was his visit to the tomb of General McClellan, at Trenton, whither he was accompanied by George B. McClellan Jr. It was raining, but scorning a proferred umbrella he knelt with bowed head and clasped hands at the foot of the grave engaged in silent prayer.

With his death his royal pretensions fall to the inheritance of his oldest son, Louis Philippe Robert, Duc d'Orleans, who accompanied the count on his second visit to this country and was arrested a few years ago for returning to France in defiance of the expulsion act. His eldest daughter is queen of Portugal.

DIVORCES IN OKLAHOMA.

Over Five Hundred Declared Void by the Supreme Court of the Territory.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Sept. 10.—The supreme court of Oklahoma in passing upon an appealed divorce case from Payne county, decided that under the present statutes of the territory probate judges had no authority to grant divorces, and that all divorces granted by any probate judge in the territory since Aug. 14, 1893, were null and void.

This decision is a far reaching one and will cause a sensation all over the country, for within the specified time fully 500 divorces has been granted in the territory by probate judges. A large majority of the persons so divorced have since remarried.

They come from every state in the union to take advantage of Oklahoma's liberal divorce enactments, and are now left in a queer predicament. They will at once take an appeal the case to the supreme court of the United States and attempt to get the territorial supreme court decision reversed. The decision does not affect the divorce law of the territory in any way, beyond the fact that all divorces must be granted by the district court.

Among the many persons involved by the supreme court decision annulling divorces granted by the probate judges are William A. Depew, of Boston, who was divorced here last spring, and at once married a Massachusetts woman; Samuel V. M[illegible], of Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. Mary B. Jordon, divorced from Charles H. [illegible], of Boston; Sarah E. Potter from [illegible] Potter, Rochester, N. Y.; Charles Lutz from Sarah A. Lutz, Harrisburg, Pa.; Arthur H. Farr from Elzetta [illegible], Pittsburg, Pa., and [illegible] of New York city, from W. P. Thompson.

Tortured by Her Foster Father.

R[illegible], Pa., Sept. [illegible]—A case of cruelty was brought to light [illegible] that has [illegible] in this city. John Zeigler [illegible] Mary Bower, [illegible] Zeigler [illegible] away early [illegible] and the girl [illegible] At night it was [illegible] Zeigler came home and beat the girl with a stick until she was insensible, put her in the attic and then locked the house and departed. The next day [illegible] found the girl in the attic, her face covered with blood. She then told of the cruelties.

Suicide by Asphyxiation.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Thomas L. Thompson, 48 years old, formerly a well known and respected advertising solicitor in Boston, was found dead in bed yesterday in a room in the Coleman House, which he had occupied since Friday, the gas turned on full head, and death had been caused by asphyxiation. It was evidently suicidal. His wife, Madame Thompson, who is now in Washington with the Casino company, separated from her husband a year ago. Since then none of his family had anything to do with him. It is said he had been recently released from jail in Boston, where he had served a short term for forgery.

CRASH IN A TUNNEL.

Rear End Collision on a Massachusetts Railway.

TWO BRAKEMEN KILLED OUTRIGHT

And Three Seriously Injured—Ten Persons Killed and Twenty Injured by the Wrecking of a Passenger Train in France.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Sept. 10.—The most horrible railroad disaster known in this vicinity took place on the Fitchburg railroad Saturday evening in the Hoosac tunnel, a short distance east of the central shaft. The accident was caused by a rear end collision between east bound freight trains.

A freight train had stopped to repair an engine which had broken down, and at about the same time a west bound express train passed through the tunnel, filling it with smoke. A second east bound freight train was allowed to enter the tunnel contrary to the rules of the road, and, the engineer being unable on account of dense smoke left by the passage of the express, to distinguish the lights of the train from the electric lights on the walls of the tunnel, crashed into it. A most horrible disaster was the result, both trains being badly wrecked. The tunnel was blockaded and two men killed outright, while three were seriously injured.

The killed were: William Turpening, brakeman, of Syracuse, N. Y.; George Mimmick, brakeman, of Fitchburg.

The injured were: Walter Clapp, engineer, of Rotterdam, N. Y., injured about the pelvis and chest; Charles Frazer, fireman, of Rotterdam, skull fractured and scalp badly wounded, injuries about the hips and back and both hands severely burned; H. B. Bartlett, brakeman, of Fitchburg, right arm cut, spine injured and badly crushed.

Operator Hodkin, who has charge of the signal lights at the east portal, is confined in the police station and the charge of criminal carelessness preferred against him. W. Hodgkins, the west portal operator, has also been placed under arrest. He claims he received the O. K. from the east end operator, and consequently changed his signal. The authorities intend to make a thorough investigation.

DISASTROUS WRECK IN FRANCE.

Ten Killed in a Collision Between an Express and a Freight Train

BRUSSELS, Sept. 10.—Ten persons were killed and twenty injured by the wrecking of the Paris and Cologne express train yesterday. The accident happened at Apilly, and was caused by a collision of the express train with a freight train which was being shunted. The engineer saw the danger ahead and reversed his engine. This had the effect of reducing the speed and rendering the accident less severe than it would otherwise have been. As it was the wreck was a very disastrous one.

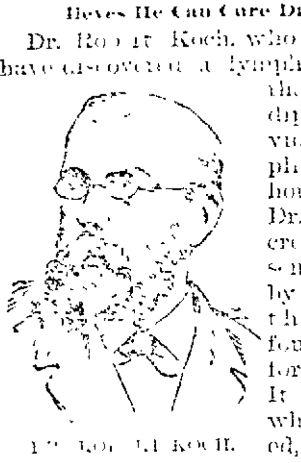
DR. KOCH'S DISCOVERIES

Career of the Great Bacteriologist Who Believes He Can Cure Diphtheria.



DR. ROBERT KOCH.

Dr. Robert Koch, who is reported to have discovered a lymph or antitoxine that will cure diphtheria provided it is applied within 36 hours, is the same Dr. Koch who created a great sensation in 1890 by announcing that he had found a sure cure for consumption. It was a fluid which, if injected, would destroy the bacilli which are the cause of consumption without destroying the patient. The consumption cure was effective in some cases, but it was useless in many others and is generally regarded as one of the failures of a most remarkable man. Whether the diphtheria cure will share the same fate remains to be seen. New York physicians believe in its efficacy, and Dr. Cyrus Edson has asked the state board of health for an appropriation of $50,000 to carry on experimental work on the lines indicated by Dr. Koch.

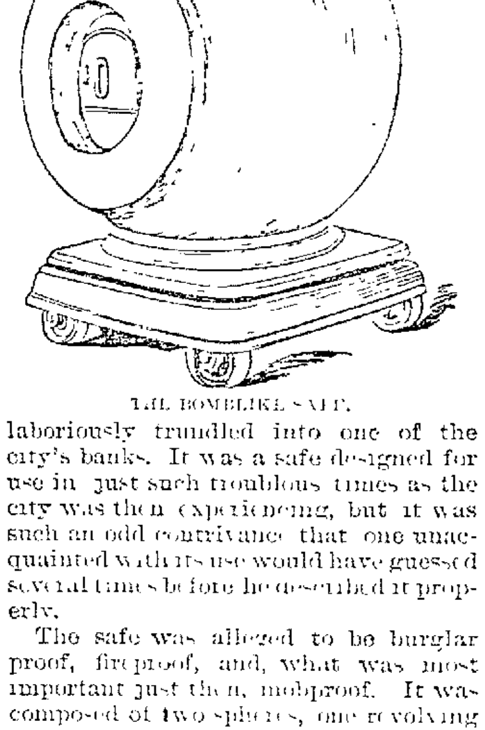
The great German bacteriologist was born in Clausthal, in the Harz mountains, Dec. 11, 1843. He was a precocious student and was graduated from the University of Gottingen in 1866 and then became an assistant in the Hamburg hospital. From 1872 until 1880 he was medical inspector at Wollstein, where he began his bacteriologic examinations of infections and made such important discoveries that he was made a member of the imperial board of health of Berlin. In 1882 he discovered the bacillus of tuberculosis and a year later led the German cholera expedition to Egypt and India, where he discovered that the cholera bacillus was the real source of cholera poison.

Upon his return to Germany in 1884 he was honored by a donation of 100,000 marks and was the lion of the hour. The following year he was elected professor of the medical faculty of Berlin and director of the new hygienic institute of the university. He has six brothers and two married sisters now living in the United States and Mexico. Dr. Koch's custom is to rise about 9 o'clock and work until 2, when he enjoys a [illegible]. He then devotes four more hours to the study of bacilli. In the evening he entertains his friends. Last year his wife got a divorce, and he was [illegible] to pay her one-fourth of his income. The doctor then married a young actress.

IT LOOKS LIKE A BIG BOMB.

The Queer Looking Safe That Was Used In Chicago During the Riots.

During the recent riots in Chicago, when no man knew what an hour might bring forth, and when financiers who had large sums of money on hand feared for the safety of their gold, a queer looking ball of great size, which looked much like a gigantic bomb-shell, was laboriously trundled into one of the city's banks. It was a safe designed for use in just such troublous times as the city was then experiencing, but it was such an odd contrivance that one unacquainted with its use would have guessed several times before he described it properly.



THE BOMBLIKE SAFE.

The safe was alleged to be burglar proof, fireproof, and, what was most important just then, mobproof. It was composed of two spheres, one revolving inside the other, and when closed it seemed to be a fortress that would guard any treasure not occupying over 50 cubic feet of space against all comers for an indefinite period. It was simply an immense iron bomb, against which the rioter's bomb and the anarchist's bomb could crack themselves in vain. If the members of a mob attempted to carry it away, too, they would find it an elephant on their hands, for the reason that it tipped the scales at the comfortable weight of 16½ tons.

When the monster guardian of gold was in its place in the bank and had tucked away inside of it about 50 cubic feet of gold, silver, paper money and securities, the officials of the bank breathed easier. This safe is said to be the largest movable one ever made, and it is alleged that government experts have tried in vain to open it, and that Uncle Sam will place vaults of the same style of construction in the treasury building in Washington, where so many precautions were taken not long ago to guard the government's gold when the commonweal armies were marching upon the capital from all points of the compass. Technically described, the big bomblike safe is made of [illegible] charcoal iron cast over [illegible] of wrought iron.

The Arch Bachelor.

Cecil Rhodes, the millionaire diamond king and political boss of South Africa, is not only a bachelor, but he insists on surrounding himself with bachelors. He has none but unmarried men on his personal and domestic staff. None of his subordinates who marries is [illegible]. "Marriage spoils a man's career—destroys smartness of aim," is his motto.

P-e-a-r-l-i-n-e.

This is the way we spell it. It's necessary to mention it, because some women don't seem to know. We find so many who say they use Pearline, and then, upon examination, find that what they are using is only some imitation of it.

See if your package is marked as above. There is only one Pearline. It makes white things whiter—bright things brighter—economical and saves at every point. For washing and cleaning, nothing under any other name can equal it.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 414 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

AMERICA'S

AND

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson: I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways: here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy ank secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

TROUBLE IN HIGH LIFE.

The Grandson of Sir Robert Peel Criticised For Courting Newspaper Notoriety.

"Bobby" Peel, about as well known a young fellow about town as London ever produced, has come over here with the avowed determination to marry Miss Kittie Sanford, the daughter of the Adams Express Sanfords, who are of course awfully rich.

These are the same Sanfords whose action ruined John Hoey, and who have pursued the remnants of his estate with singular persistency.

Young Bobby Peel's ambition is a very laudable one, as Miss Sanford is a very pretty and accomplished girl and an heiress to boot, and better than all has evinced a very decided partiality for Mr. Peel.

At the same time many old fashioned people will object to the methods employed by Peel to overcome the opposition of Miss Sanford's family.

He has taken the newspapers into his confidence and makes long statements about his own worthiness and undying love and calls his sought after relatives all kinds of names for denying his suit.

It is doubtful if he would try such a game at home in England.

If young Peel really loves Miss Sanford as he declares he does (in the newspapers), it would be more dignified for him to keep her name out of public journals.

Love is a passion that needs no advertising, and a sweetheart's name is not the one to be bandied about in daily print.

If young Peel loves Miss Sanford as much without as with her prospective fortune, he can elope with her at any time—provided she is willing.

Love laughs at locks and bars, but grows cold under newspaper interviews and long winded statements.

Another alternative also presents itself to Mr. Peel.

If he loves Miss Sanford as much as he says he does (on paper), why cannot he settle down and do something to prove his love?

The Sanfords object to him because he has been a ne'er do well and has cost his father a lot of money to keep him going in the society in which he is entitled to live.

But by all odds my advice to Bobby is to keep out of the newspapers.

It would be simply horrible if he published some of Miss Sanford's letters to prove how she loves him. Yet he seemed to be just on the verge of such insanity yesterday.—Charley [illegible] in New York Recorder.

KOCH'S LATEST DISCOVERY.

Dr. Edson of New York's Board of Health Says It Is a Sure Cure For Diphtheria.

At a recent session of the state board of health of New York Dr. Cyrus A. Edson gave an account of the theory and practical application of Dr. Koch's last discovery, which he considers an absolute and infallible cure for diphtheria if applied within 36 hours after infection. To study and report upon this remedy Dr. Herman M. Biggs, the bacteriologist of the New York board of health, had been sent to Berlin and had just returned, confirming all the enthusiastic reports concerning the discovery which had made their way to this country.

It was the purpose of the health department, Dr. Edson announced, to ask from the board of estimate and apportionment a sufficient appropriation to establish a plant for the production of this infallible specific, which otherwise would be too costly to be within the means of poor people. Dr. Edson asserted confidently that if this remedy were placed in the hands of the health department it would save next year the lives of 1,500 people in this city.

The division of pathology and bacteriology at 42 Bleecker street gave an exhibition of specimens of bacteria under the direction of Dr. Biggs. Autopsies were made upon two guinea pigs which had been inoculated with diphtheria bacilli. The result showed that the guinea pigs had developed the disease.

The purpose of the exhibition was principally to encourage the medical profession to devote particular attention to their investigations of diphtheritic and consumption cases.

Kissing the Pope's Toe.

Our old friend, Felix Campbell, one of Brooklyn's intelligent representatives in congress, has been honored with an interview with the pope, and when asked if he kissed the pope's toe he laughed and said, "I guess that's not done much nowadays." Brother Campbell is mistaken. It is just as much done as ever. In other words, it never was done. The pope wears on his slipper a gold cross, and this it is customary with the faithful to kiss. I was surprised to learn that the pope conversed with Brother Campbell's daughters in French. The custom is for him to address those whom he honors with private audiences in Italian, which is translated always by an interpreter.—Joe Howard.

Our National Air.

In reading accounts of the yacht races I noticed that the English bands could not play an American national air because "God Save the Queen" and "America" were the same. I have never found the reason why "The Star Spangled Banner" should not be our national air. I have heard them all played by the best bands in the country, and there is none which sends a thrill of gratitude at being an American through me so as that grand finale:

And the star spangled banner in triumph doth wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

—Carlos in Boston Traveler.

Monkeys Can Smoke.

The question whether monkeys can smoke has been settled in the affirmative at the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, where mischievous boys have taught several occupants of the monkey house to smoke cigarettes, which they grow to enjoy hugely.

Railroaders in Convention

HARRISBURG, Sept. 10.—The city is filled with visiting railroad men and delegates to the fourth biennial convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, which convened this morning. Frank P. Sargent, the grand master, is in attendance. Two sessions will be held daily for two weeks, there being a large amount of business of importance to the Brotherhood to be transacted. The recent troubles growing out of the Pullman boycott will be among the most interesting of the many topics.

An unknown woman cast herself down from the station platform in front of an approaching train. Her body was caught under the engine wheels and she was fearfully mangled. She doubtless met with instant death.

SUPERSTITIOUS RUSSIA.

The Cruel Murder of a Woman Supposed to Be the "Cholera Devil."

Another form which the devil assumes in Russia pretty often of late is that of the cholera, who, of course, is a female. In the district of Barnaul the other day the peasants were determined to make short work of the "cunning one" in that odious role of his. They clubbed together and lay in wait. One day they caught the spirit of evil on his way to infect people with the terrible epidemic. It was riding in a tarantass—a sort of springless cart covered with canvas—disguised in the form of a female.

The watchman refused to allow the tarantass to enter the village of Prasloukha. The woman inside protested, but had to turn back. The peasants assembled, gave chase to the tarantass, surrounded it and called out to the "cholera devil" to disappear. The poor woman said she was human like themselves and could not vanish miraculously, but they shouted, prayed and closed around. A few shots were heard, followed by a piteous moan and then a deafening shout of triumph: "Pray to God, brothers, and thank him. We have killed the cholera." The woman's name was Kondratieff. Her corpse was not allowed into the village.—London Telegraph.

The Emperor and the Yachts.

Emperor William does not sympathize with American ambition to yacht in English waters, says an American, writing from London. Nobody was more pleased than he when his royal uncle's yacht beat the Vigilant. Even the London newspapers felt called upon to explain that the kaiser's visit was purely personal and that his social pleasures or shortcomings among the visitors at Cowes were solely his private affair.

The Browning Slab.

The slab to cover the grave of Robert Browning in Westminster abbey has just been completed in Venice. It is of the oriental porphyry of which the poet was particularly fond. It has been put into a frame of Sienna marble, and the whole, though rich, is of the greatest simplicity. The inscription will consist only of the name and the dates of birth and death, with an English rose at the head and a Florentine lily below.

ALONG THE DELAWARE.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS IN EASTERN WAYNE COUNTY, PA.

Effects of the Drouth—An Unhappy Wife's Disappearance—Looking for Coal at Galilee—A Broken Leg—Poor Fishing—Little Fruit-Possible Changes—An Exciting Experience.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—The long drouth has at last been broken. It was time. Everything bears a scorched appearance and the woods look more like the last of October than the first of September. Vegetation is so scarce that many farmers are compelled to feed their cattle hay. Cattle are shrinking and the flow of milk has dropped to less than one half. All new seeding will be a failure,—even seed sowed with buckwheat. Some farmers have commenced to cut their field corn to feed to the stock, since their supply of drilled fodder became exhausted. Although the ground has become so dry on top, wells and springs were even lower seven years ago this fall.

—Domestic infelicity, which had continued for some time, caused Mrs. Horace Bush, of Conklin Hill, to leave home some two weeks ago, with the intention of making a change for the better. When leaving she kissed her three young children a good-bye and then turned her back upon the scenes of her misery. A letter subsequently received from her by her mother revealed by the post mark that she was in Port Jervis. She instructed her mother to see that the children were looked after and said she would see that she was paid for the trouble. John Raymond, the woman's father, went to his daughter's to visit and found that she had gone and was not coming back, but could not tell anything further. Until the receipt of the letter there seemed to be a cloud of mystery over the disappearance, that was in no way consoling.

—I have mentioned in these columns before that it was strongly suspected that anthracite coal existed in lands near Galilee, as many chunks of the dusky diamonds have been found slightly below the surface. Several practical miners have viewed the locality from time to time and thought indications were favorable. About a month ago the people of the above locality sent to Scranton for an experienced test hole driller to come out and look the matter over. He came and made such superficial examinations as he could. A survey showed the locality to be in direct line with the Forest City coal beds. Subsequently the people have organized themselves into a stock company with County Commissioner Joel G. Hill as President, W. J. Bush, Vice-President, E. A. Hollenbeck, Secretary, J. L. Brigham, Treasurer and a board of seven directors. As soon as the grounds can be properly leased and other arrangements made, the work of putting down a test hole will be begun.

—Nick Conklin had a leg broken near the ankle while starting timber on Friday, the 31st. The stick was long and flexible, and in rounding a stump the hook let go its hold, which let the stick recoil with tremendous force, striking him with the above result. Mr. Conklin is nearly sixty years old.

—Fishermen in the Delaware at these points are not having a flush of success. The water is very low and filled with so much green matter that the sport is entirely robbed of its pleasure, as the line brings in a load of this green stuff every time. There are places where one could almost cross the river dry shod by stepping from stone to stone. It would be no trick to wade it.

—Fruit is scarce through Wayne county. Nearly everyone has enough to serve himself, but little for market, and that of an inferior sort. Potatoes are not in abundance, but I think that the yield will be above what was expected before the digging season began.

—Should coal be found in paying quantities at Galilee it will cause quite a sensation in this section of country. It is about six miles from the Erie at Cochecton, so, of course, a railroad will be one of the great necessities, as carting coal so far by teams will be out of the question. There will be a chance for the P., H. & A. Railroad scheme to be resurrected and the course changed to run through this new-found coal field and cross the Erie at or near Callicoon. Conjecture is rife, pro and con, as regards what may be found when the test hole is sunk, but it seems that there are enough of those who favor the idea to chip in and be convinced by actual test. The country roundabout is now a law-abiding section, whose people are engaged mostly in farming. But if coal be found there will be a great transformation at once, and not for the better as the scurf of the earth generally flock to such new fields. Locks and bars will be in demand for farm houses.

—Tom Gilroy, of Galilee, had a moment of excitement one day last week, and a narrow escape from serious injury in the bargain. He and his sister were on their way to the Cochecton station. When about half way of the six miles, their horse became frightened at a little girl catching butterflies with a net on a pole. Doubtless everything would have come out all right but one of the lines broke. Mr. Gilroy then attempted to climb over along the shafts to get the animal by the head, and would have succeeded had not the animal begun kicking. One kick was planted glancingly upon the waistband of Gilroy's trousers, completely disrobing him of those articles, but fortunately he had a pair of base ball knickerbockers under them. But the kick knocked him out, and the horse soon broke loose from the buggy and leaped over a barbed wire fence into a field, where it soon stopped. The buggy was wrecked, but strange to say neither Mr. Gilroy nor his sister were injured beyond a bad shaking up and a few scratches. The horse was torn somewhat upon the breast by the wire fence, but not seriously. B. T. J.

THE ORIGIN OF MAN.

Ancient Beliefs That Trees Were the Ancestors of the Human Race.

The descent of the human race from some particular species of tree is one of the oldest myths that can be found running through the folk stories of every nation. In Virgil we find reference to the race of "men who took their birth from trunks of trees," and among some of the early commentators on that statement we even find speculations as to the particular species of tree from which the race sprung. The very earliest Egyptians as well as those who lived under later dynasties had a legend of the "tree of life," and many of the leading investigators, both ancient and modern, have expressed the opinion that from Egypt came the Biblical story of the "tree of knowledge of good and evil" which graced the original garden made by the All Wise for our first parents.

Professor Thistelton (see his "Folk Lore of Plants") believes that the Scriptural narrative cited is a survival of the belief in the "tree descent of man," and that the abiding faith of mankind in the tradition again crops out in Revelation, where the "tree of life" plays as important a part as that of the famous tree mentioned in the first book of the Bible. The natives of Madagascar have a tradition which is believed and perpetuated among them to the effect that the first man was born alive from a tree, and that he immediately set about making himself "a helpmeet," fashioning her from a knotted limb by the aid of a mussel shell carving knife.

Marsden's "History of Sumatra" tells us that the people of the Philippine islands also have the tree descent legend among them, and King, in his "Life Among the Bushmen of Australia," says that the people there habitually live among the trees, because "they are taught from infancy that their early ancestors were trees endowed with the faculty of speaking and moving about from place to place."—St. Louis Republic.

SIGNING THE DECLARATION.

Jefferson was fond of telling a story which illustrates in a forcible manner the importance that absurdly insignificant matters may sometimes assume. When the deliberative body that gave the world the Declaration of Independence was in session, its proceedings were conducted in a hall close to which was situated a livery stable. The weather was warm, and from the stable came swarms of flies that lighted on the legs of the honorable members, and biting through the thin silk stockings then in fashion gave infinite annoyance. It was no uncommon sight, said Jefferson, to see a member making a speech with a large handkerchief in hand and pausing at every moment to thrash the flies from his thinly protected calves.

The opinion of the body was not unanimous in favor of the document, and, under other circumstances, discussion might have been protracted for days, if not weeks, but the flies were intolerable. Efforts were made to find another hall, free from the pests, but in vain. As the weather became warmer the flies grew worse, and the flapping of handkerchiefs was heard all over the hall as an accompaniment to the voices of the speakers.

In despair at last some one suggested that matters be hurried, so that the body might adjourn and get away from the flies. There were a few mild protests, but no one heeded them, the immortal declaration was hurriedly copied, and, with handkerchiefs in hand fighting flies as they came, the members hastened up to the table to sign the authentic copy and leave the flies in the lurch.

Had it not been for the livery stable and its inmates there is no telling when the document would have been completed, but it certainly would not have been signed on the Fourth.—Philadelphia Press.

Couldn't "Do" John.

He was a busted sport, with very much soiled linen, and when he found a laundry check issued by the only Chinese laundry in Carondelet he thought he was fixed. He took it to John's washhouse and demanded the clothes it called for. The washerman took the ticket behind a screen, where he had a long consultation with the other Chinaman. After a time he came out and asked:

"Shirtee?"
"Yes."
"Colla?"
"Yes."
"Hanchiff?"
"Yes."
"Socks?"
"Yes."

Here John's patience vanished, and throwing open the door he yelled:

"All one big lie!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three alternate delegates from each Assembly District to a State Convention to be held at Saratoga Springs, on Tuesday, Sept 25 h 1894, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

Within two weeks more than 20,000 iron and steel workers have resumed work in the Braddock, Pa., district. More Democratic tariff ruin.

It is time the Democratic committee for this Assembly District "got a move on" and issued a call for the district convention to choose delegates to the State Convention. Under the State Committee's call six days' notice of the holding of primaries is to be given and longer notice can do no harm. There is no good reason for delaying the call, and the sooner it is issued the better for the interests of the party.

Tom Platt figures that Morton will have at least 450 of the 730 votes in the Republican Sate Convention, and some of the more sanguine Mortonites put his strength at over 500 votes. In all these estimates, Morton is given all the votes of Orange, Sullivan and Rockland counties, young Ben Odell - bailiwick.

Some Republicans of Kings county, encouraged by their success with William J Gaynor as a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, last fall, propose to make a straight out nomination against Judge Cullen, whose term expires this year and who will be renominated by the Democrats. Judge Cullen has been an able, conscientious, courageous, painstaking Judge, who has won the respect, confidence and esteem of lawyers and people in all parts of the district, and unless partisan greed for office blinds the Republicans to the real interests of the people and the advantages of keeping the judiciary out of politics, the plan for a straight out judicial nomination will be abandoned and Judge Cullen will be honored by the Republican endorsement.

The New York Journal of Commerce, than which there is no better authority on business and commercial topics, calls attention to the fact that Pennsylvania coal, which is sold for $3 per ton in New York, is sold for $1 90 a ton for export to the West Indies and Mexico. Typewriting machines, sewing machines, mowing machines and many other articles are also sold for export at prices from fifteen to thirty per cent. below the price for domestic use, showing that American manufacturers can compete in foreign markets and can scale their prices very considerably and yet make a profit on their goods. These facts prove that the protective features of the tariff are mainly instruments for the robbery of the American public and that the pretence that the American workman needs or receives protection is baseless in fact.

THE DEMOCRATIC RECORD.

Speaker Crisp, in a speech which he made at Atlanta, Ga., Friday evening, summarized the work of the Democrats in Congress as follows.

The Democratic party enters upon its contest with Republicanism, and every other temporary issue which may present itself, with courage and confidence While we have not done all we hoped to do, we have done more in the past year to redress the wrongs of the people, and have done more for their relief than was ever done by any party in the same length of time in any country under the sun These are bold words, yet I hold myself at all times ready to defend them. Coming into power at a time of panic, when business was at a standstill, when labor was unemployed, when our Treasury was empty, with courage and fidelity we entered upon a struggle with the enemies of the people, we emerged from that struggle victorious in this

We have repealed the McKinley Law.

We have greatly reduced taxation.

We have made living cheaper

We have made all money taxable.

We have taxed surplus incomes

We have restored freedom of elections

We have reduced public expenditures, and we have declared undying hostility to all trusts and monopolies organized for the oppression of the people.

On these foundations we "build our house," on these issues we go before the people. For them we have fought the good fight, to them we have kept faith, and of them we have no fear.

The earlier symptoms of dyspepsia, heartburn and occasional headaches, should not be neglected. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla to be cured.

BESSEMER ON BESSEMER STEEL.

Marvelous Quickness in Converting Cast Iron Into the Hardened Metal.

In The Engineering Review Sir Henry Bessemer has an article on the steel industry which bears his name He reminds us that a third of a century ago Sheffield steel made from the costly bar iron of Sweden realized from £50 to £60 a ton. Now, by the Bessemer process, steel of excellent quality can be made direct from crude pig iron at a cost ridiculously small compared with former prices and in quantities which the old steel workers never dreamed of dealing with at one operation.

In lieu of the slow and expensive process of converting wrought iron bars into crude or blister steel by 10 days' exposure at a very high temperature to the action of carbon, cast iron worth only £3 a ton is, Sir Henry says, converted into Bessemer cast steel in 30 minutes wholly without skilled manipulation or the employment of fuel, and while still maintaining its initial heat it can at once be rolled into railway bars or other required forms.

The article gives a vivid picture of all that has been brought about by this revolution in a manufacture in which up to our own time there had been no change since blades of matchless temper were wrought in the forges of Damascus and Toledo Steel is now adapted to a thousand purposes of which our ancestors had no conception.

By way of giving some idea of the enormous production of Bessemer steel now, Sir Henry asks us to imagine a wall 5 feet in thickness and 20 feet high, like a gigantic armor plate formed into a circle and made to surround London The inclosure so made would extend to Watford on the north side, to Croydon on the south, to Woolwich on the east and to Richmond on the west It would contain an area of 795 square miles and this great wall of London, weighing 10,500,000 tons, would just be equal to one year's production of Bessemer steel

SUNDAY AT MIDWAY.

Crowds Attend the A. M. E. Zion Grove Meeting.

The grove meeting of the A. M. E. Zion Church at Midway Park, yesterday, was attended by many of our citizens, both white and colored, and many of the colored people from neighboring towns were present. The services were interesting, especially the singing, which was exceptionally good.

There were many people at Midway, however, who did not go to attend the services, but to enjoy an outing that they could not have on any other day of the week and in all from 2,500 to 3,000 people visited the park. The electric cars were kept busy and a portion of the time during the afternoon and evening double headers were run.

The large crowd was an orderly and quiet one and no accident happened except the burning out of a fuse on one of the green cars, which caused a delay of about 15 minutes.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY NOTES

A Big Day's Business—Work on the Asylum Line.

—The electric cars carried about 7,000 passengers, yesterday.

—An additional force of men were put at work on the entension of the Asylum line, this morning, and it is expected that the excavation will be completed nearly to Bonnell street, to-day.

—It is probable that there will be some delay in securing the right of way over the Erie to Cornelia street, and that cars will be run only as far Bonnell street for the present.

—The Asylum line is completed as far as West Main street, and a gang of men are at work this afternoon cleaning up Wickham avenue. It only remains to string the wires, when cars will be run to Main street.

Improvements to the Grounds of the First Presbyterian Church.

Very extensive improvements are being made to the grounds about the First Presbyterian Church. The removal of the fence in front was of itself a big improvement, but since then the walks have been relaid and the grounds are being nicely graded, and to complete the work a handsome coping will be laid along the entire front.

Just Married.

How loving they are; this is always a sure sign. After the first year sometimes it don't hold good. When Charles comes home to you grouty and cross, snapping and snarling, unable to relish the nice dinner—you have cooked, and feels as if there was a ton of pig iron in his stomach, he is troubled with dyspepsia, and Sulphur Bitters is the only medicine that will cure him.

CRUSHED UNDER THE CAR WHEELS.

An O. and W. Brakeman Falls From His Train—His Body Horribly Mangled.

John L. Quick, an O. & W. brakeman, fell from his train at Little Britain, last night, and was instantly killed, his body being horribly mangled.

The train passed that point about midnight, but Quick was not missed until the train reached Cornwall, as his lantern could be seen on top of the car.

When it was discovered that he was not on the train men were sent back and found his body near Little Britain. It is supposed that two trains passed over him.

The body was brought to this city and turned over to Undertaker Rockafellow, and Coroner Decker was notified.

Quick was 24 years old and had no family. He came here from Port Jervis, and has been in the employ of the O. & W. since July. He boarded at 16 Prince street.

The dead man was a son of Lum Quick, who runs the livery stable connectad with the Delaware House in Port Jervis.

He was a member of Neversink Lodge, 253, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Port Jervis.

Coroner Decker impanelled a jury this morning, and will hold an inquest as soon as the train crew returns to town.

THE BLOCKING OF RAILROAD CROSSINGS.

A Matter That Should be Regulated Better Than It Is.

With a rigid enforcement of the city ordinance regulating the blocking of railway crossings and a disposition on the part of the railway employes to respect the rights of the public there would be no occasion for the long delays of passengers on street cars, or pedestrians, that we have experienced of late and which have necessitated a complete change in the street car schedule.

There is no good reason why the gates should be shut while the yard engine or a local freight train is run back and forth from one end of the yard to the other until it has finished its work of shifting cars.

When an engine or train has passed over the crossing it should be held there until the crowds that have collected, and waiting street cars as well, have been allowed to pass and then given an opportunity to complete its work. It is very annoying to be held at a crossing while a shifting engine runs from North street to West Main, shifts cars into two or three switches and returns to pick up another batch of cars and repeats the process probably two or three times.

There is no reason why the trains should wait for the public to cross, nor should the public be compelled to wait longer than necessary while some engineer or conductor displays his skill at drilling. There should be a spirit of mutual accommodation.

Rain Prevents a Game of Ball.

The game of base ball between the Liberty Cycle Company's team and the Asylums, scheduled for Saturday, was abandoned owing to the rain. Both teams were on the field in uniform, and indulged in preliminary practice during the showers. As play was about to be called, however, the rain came down in such quantity that after waiting a few minutes the managers of both teams agreed to call the game off.

A Good Appetite

Always accompanies good health, and an absence of appetite is an indication of something wrong. The universal testimony given by those who have used Hood's Sarsaparilla as to its merits in restoring the appetite, and as a purifier of the blood, constitutes the strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine.

So Says an Italian Caught Stealing Articles Thrown from Windows by Hospital Patients.

For some time past the authorities at the State Hospital have been annoyed by the disappearance of articles of clothing, sheets, pillow cases, etc., which the patients in the institution throw out of the windows during the night.

An employe collects the articles every morning and they are taken to the laundry.

On several occasions, however, some one has been ahead of the employe, and a watch has been kept, with the result that this morning an Italian, giving his name as Frank Tiars, aged twenty-four, was caught as he was leaving the grounds with a bag full of plunder.

He claimed that he was a rag and bone picker and that he thought the goods had been thrown away as useless.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge of petty larceny and was held in default of $200 bail for trial, tomorrow morning.

A RETIRED BUSINESS WOMAN.

A Page From Her History.

The important experiences of others are interesting. The following is no exception: "I had been troubled with heart disease 25 years, much of that time very seriously. For five years I was treated by one physician continuously. I was in business, but obliged to retire on account of my health. A physician told my friends that I could not live a month. My feet and limbs were badly swollen, and I was indeed in a serious condition when a gentleman directed my attention to Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and said that his sister, who had been afflicted with heart disease, had been cured by the remedy, and was again a strong, healthy woman. I purchased a bottle of the Heart Cure, and in less than an hour after taking the first dose I could feel a decided improvement in the circulation of my blood. When I had taken three doses I could move my ankles, something I had not done for months,and my limbs had been swollen so long that they seemed almost petrified. Before I had taken one bottle of the New Heart Cure the swelling had all gone down, and I was so much better that I did my own work. On my recommendation six others are taking this valuable remedy."—Mrs. Morgan, 565 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

AMERICA'S VIRTUOUS SUPREMACY.

A Writer Who Thinks Saratoga Can Match the Countess of Roslyn.

It is much more comfortable to consider the mote in your brother's eye than the beam in your own.

I heard some patriotic American women congratulating themselves that with all its fashionable follies and fads "swell life" in this country never did and it was not likely it ever could approach that in England.

And then one of them told that damaging little story about the young Countess of Roslyn losing her diamond studded cigarette case in a fashionable restaurant, the case having been presented to her by no less a personage than the Princess of Wales.

Naughty Countess of Roslyn, to smoke her cigarettes in a public restaurant! After all, Spartan virtue is the best sort to hold fast by. The crime consists not in the commission, but in the discovery. Now, if she had only smoked at home! I wondered if either of those two good American dames had ever been in Saratoga during the racing season. I doubt if their strong convictions of America's virtuous supremacy could stand the shock likely to be administered there.

One does not like to read about the universality of betting going on there among women—not fast, base women alone, women who have no reputations to lose, but all sorts and conditions, young and old, gray haired women, to whom you would think eternity was appealing as an imminent call, young girls flinging aside textbooks for betting books. Rich and poor, the mania has seized them all, and a poolroom is at their disposal where they can empty their purses and display their lack of horse sense with the recklessness characteristic of women who, having stepped outside the barriers that mark the line of safety, care little how far they wander from the safety of beaten paths.—Jeannette H. Walworth in New York Mail and Express.

AFTER THE "EVIL EYE."

The Marquis of Bute Backs the Society For Psychical Research In a Little Flier.

The Society For Psychical Research, at the moment when the supply of ghosts and the society's funds were falling short, has had the felicity of finding a new field of inquiry and the money with which to explore it. They have to thank the Marquis of Bute for both favors. The marquis is a solid, solemn, millionaire peer and a devout Catholic who has always taken a languid interest in spooks.

Reading recently a newspaper paragraph describing a case in the sheriff's court at Oban, in which the defendant was said to possess "the evil eye," he wrote to the secretary of the society offering $500 toward the cost of an inquiry into that malignant optic in particular and the questions of second sight and other Scottish superstitions in general.

The society greedily snapped at the offer and forthwith organized an expedition, which is now wandering about Scotland on a lookout for evil eyes, seers, witches and such like. Reliable information as to the progress made has not yet come to hand, probably because a selfish reporter who wants to score a beat with a complete story is attached to the expedition, but it is rumored that the Oban defendant with the evil eye was tracked to his lair and gave the investigators a remarkably warm reception, from the effects of which they are still suffering. It is said also that the marquis has been rebuked by his spiritual advisers for displaying unseemly and premature curiosity in ghostly things, but that is probably a libel upon his lordship and his chaplains.—London Letter.

Beer Statistics.

Statistics have been compiled at Vienna of the quantity of beer drank in 1893 in the entire world. Germany heads the list with 1,202,132,674 gallons, an increase of 34,000,000 over 1892, the consumption being 33 gallons per head, ranging from 62 gallons in Bavaria to 12 gallons in Lothringen; Great Britain second, 1,165,752,000 gallons, or 30 per head; America, including the whole of the western hemisphere, is third, with more than a billion gallons, or 16 per head. The total for the world, not including Asia and Africa, is 4,500,000,000 gallons, requiring 7,270,000 tons of malt and 82,000 tons of hops.

More Sugar Wanted.

Eugene Field says that it has long been his opinion that the advocates of woman suffrage should abandon the rigorous tactics they have ineffectually used for so long a time and adopt the milder tactics of persuasion. The woman suffrage cause needs less virility and more femininity, less jaundice and more sugar. Bright eyes, pretty complexions, jaunty figures and stylish costumes are, always were, he thinks, and by God's grace always will be, more potent influences in determining the opinions and actions of men than the keenest wit and the most convincing logic.

Will Miss Pence.

The next house will miss the soaring eloquence and quick wit of Lafe Pence of Colorado, who has decided not to be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Pence won his spurs by tripping Bynum in the silver repeal debate and later was conspicuous when the Coxey horde concentrated on Washington. Mr. Pence is a lawyer, but has not allowed that fact to interfere with his being a Populist. His reason for deciding not to return seems rather odd in a Populist, however. He says he cannot live in Washington on $5,000 a year.—Chicago Times.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS.

They Relate to the Business Outlook and Are Seen by the Coal Barons.

At the Fifth Avenue hotel yesterday and at the Hamburg-American dock in Hoboken there was a large gathering of Leisenrings, Kemmerers, Wentzes, Righters and other "coal barons" of the Lehigh valley to say goodby to Mr. E. B. Leisenring, president of the Lehigh Coal Navigation company, whose failing health has at length caused him to lay down the immediate supervision of his vast business interests and go to Europe for recuperation and recreation.

Talking with these coal barons, I was much interested to find that they are taking a very hopeful view of the business situation and that quite apart from the fact that the great anthracite coal industry in which they are more specially interested has had more than its share of prosperity during the long season when the bituminous coal regions all over the country were blighted by a strike of most comprehensive proportions.

Mr. M. S. Kemmerer said that the most encouraging sign to his mind was the improvement in the iron industry, a branch of business closely allied to coal mining, and the two together having much to do with the general prosperity of the country. A day or two ago came an order from Brazil for the manufacture of 60 locomotives, a big thing in itself, since the building of locomotives has been practically suspended for a long while. At the Schenectady works orders from American railroads are coming in for railroad iron. At Bethlehem, where little beyond the manufacture of armor plate for the government has been going on, there is perceptible activity, and one of the great iron companies has booked more orders within the last six weeks than in the preceding six months.—M. P. Handy.

SENATORS AND BASEBALL.

Mr. Hill of New York Tells About the First Time He Met Mr. Gorman.

Senator Hill tells an interesting story about the first time he ever saw Senator Gorman. It was long before they both became famous, and the incident was not recalled until Senator Hill became a fellow senator with the Maryland leader, and it was found that both were very fond of the national game of baseball.

"It was back in the sixties," said Senator Hill, "when everybody was interested in baseball. There was a convention in New York city. The cities along the Atlantic coast attended. I was a delegate from Elmira, representing the Alerts. I remember that the president of the convention knew nothing about parliamentary law, and it was not long before we were in a tangle and with no prospect of being extricated. Then they got a little fellow in the chair who knew all about the way to handle a convention, and he soon had things running smoothly. He held them down, I tell you. I forgot who he was and never recalled until after coming to Washington, when I was talking about the meeting with Senator Gorman, and he said he was there and presided. And he was. He represented the old Nationals of Washington."

While there are other senators who enjoy baseball, none are such devotees as Senators Hill and Gorman. The Maryland senator has not found time to indulge his inclination this season, as he has been too busy getting a tariff bill through the senate, which Senator Hill has been trying to defeat. Mr. Hill attends every game played here.—Washington Letter.

Women and Learning.

Statistics collected by the regents of the University of New York shows that in the secondary schools there are 23,556 girls of academic grade and 18,243 boys. Last year more than two-thirds of the 438 honor certificates went to girls. In the colleges there are 2,923 girls and 4,043 in the professional and technical schools. Many other young women are studying law, medicine, painting and music. The United States census of 1890 gave the number of women teachers as 238,397. In their report upon these statistics the regents remark, "The remarkable development of woman's higher education is due to widespread recognition that a college course is needed as the best preparation for wifehood, motherhood and home life as much as for a professional life."

If Guilty, Forgiveness Is Assured.

The mortality among newspapers in the United States during the past 18 months has been something almost unprecedented. In New York state alone 273 newspapers suspended between June, 1893, and June, 1894. For the first time since 1869 the total number catalogued by the newspaper directory is less than for the preceding year. This is said to be due to hard times caused by the Democratic free trade panic, but this is one of the things for which that party will most assuredly be forgiven. If he who makes two blades of grass to grow where but one grew before is a benefactor of his kind, what shall be said of him who makes but one newspaper to desolate the community where there were three before?—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Kipling Story.

This capital story some one tells of Kipling as illustrating very clearly the characteristics of the vigorous English boy who was afterward to achieve such widespread fame by his pen. When a boy of 12, he went on a voyage with his father, who, becoming desperately seasick, retired to his berth, leaving young Rudyard to his own devices. Presently the poor father heard a tremendous commotion over his head, and down the companionway dashed the boatswain, three steps at a time and shouting excitedly, "Mr. Kipling, your boy has crawled out on the yardarm, and if he lets go he'll drown sure."

"Yes," said Mr. Kipling, falling back on his pillow with a sigh of relief, "but he won't let go."

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

TOO GRASPING.

The Patent Leather Shoes and the Pink Shirt Gave Him Away.

A young man who said he was a missionary about to start for that part of Africa where Mtesa of happy memory reigned went into a Brooklyn clothing store last week and presented a letter from the secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The letter introduced the missionary, asked the clothier to let him pick out a full wardrobe and to send the bill to the Y. M. C. A. This was all very satisfactory, and the missionary was given the run of the shop. Among the things which he selected were one swallowtail coat, three shirts with rose pink bosoms, one pair of button patent leathers, one pair of patent leather pumps, one pair of lilac gloves, two pairs of tan gloves, one silk umbrella, one sweetheart walking stick and one silk hat.

"Won't you have some silk suspenders?" asked the clerk.

"Yes, I will," said the missionary.

When the purchases were made, the clerk, who is a rock-ribbed Presbyterian and knows something of missions, said: "Did I understand you to say that you were going out to Uganda?"

"Yes, Uganda, yes."

"And may I ask what church sends you?"

"Oh, the Presbyterian church—the board of foreign missions."

The clerk felt a great heat crawling into his head as he thought: "And have I been such a chump as to give my hard earned tithes for patent leathers and lilac kids and that sort of thing when I thought I was assisting in the conversion of the heathen? By jinks, it's strange."

When the young missionary had gone, the clerk had an interview with his employer.

"What!" cried the clothier. "Swallowtail coats and pink shirts in equatorial Africa! I believe he's a fraud."

And so it proved. The Y. M. C. A. had not sent the young man, and when the clothes were delivered to him an officer was close by, who arrested him. He was quite crestfallen and declared that he would gladly go out as a missionary rather than go to the penitentiary, but he could find no one who cared to send him to heathen lands.

"It was them patent leathers done the job for you, young man," said the officer as he led him away to durance.

"Yes, and the pink shirt, d—n 'em!" wept the youth. "Why couldn't I let well enough alone?"—Buffalo Courier.

One Man's Sad Experience.

A gentleman living out on College street drove down to the city the other evening after his wife, and not finding her started home again.

After leaving the city he saw a lady walking along in the street ahead whom he took for his better half. Riding up to her, he said, "Get in," when she turned a strange face up to him and answered: "Thank you, sir. You look all right, but I don't know you."

He apologized and drove on, when he saw another lady walking on ahead. He said: "I've been looking for you. Will you ride home with me?" "I guess that you have made a mistake," she said as she looked up. Again he apologized.

It does not sound like fact, but he did see another woman walking home along the clay road whom he approached, saying rather tartly: "Come, wife, get in here. I've been making a fool of myself all the way up." She likewise proved a stranger, the daughter of a man living just above the fair grounds.

When the man saw a fourth woman walking in the twilight, he set his teeth, and whipping his horse into a run went by her like the wind. That woman was his wife.—Lewiston Journal.

STATE OF NEW YORK,

Office of the Secretary of State.

ALBANY, AUGUST 4, 1894.

Pursuant to the provisions of section seven chapter six hundred and eighty, Laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-two, notice is hereby given that the following proposed amendment to article six of the Constitution of the State of New York will be submitted to the people of the said State, for the purpose of voting thereon at the next general election in this State, to be held on the sixth day of November, eighteen hundred and ninety-four.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION.

Proposing amendment to article six of the Constitution of this state in relation to County Judges and Court of Sessions in the county of Kings.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

Whereas, At the last session of the Legislature, the following amendment was proposed in the Senate and Assembly, viz:

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That article six of the Constitution of this state be amended by adding thereto the following section:

"§ 32. There shall be in the county of Kings two county judges, each of whose term of office shall be six years. The county judge in office at the adoption of this amendment shall hold office until the expiration of the term for which he was elected. The additional county judge shall be elected at the general election next after the adoption of this amendment, and his term of office shall begin on the first day of January thereafter. When the official term of any county judge of said county will expire by the effluxion of time or the disability of age, the successor of such judge shall be chosen at the preceding general election. Vacancies otherwise occuring in said offices shall be filled in the same manner as vacancies in the Supreme Court. The salary of said county judge shall be as now established by law for county judge in said county. Their powers and jurisdiction shall be co-ordinate and co-equal. One or more parts of the county court may be held in said county. The court of sessions in the county of Kings is continued with the powers and jurisdiction it now possesses, and with such additional powers and jurisdiction as may be conferred by the Legislature; it must be held by a county judge of the county, and may hold one or more parts."

And whereas, The said proposed amendment was agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses of the said Legislature, entered on the journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and referred to the Legislature to be chosen at the then next general election of senators.

And, whereas, Such election has taken place and said proposed amendment was duly published for three months previous to the time of making such choice, in pursuance of the provisions of article thirteen of the Constitution; therefore,

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the Assembly do agree to the proposed amendment.

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

Two Very Interesting Old Papers—An Orange County Gazette of 1813 and an Orange County Patriot of 1821—Nothing New Under the Sun—Vermont's Governor's Kick Against United States Control of Militia—A Butter Trust and a Blacksmith's Combine—Town of Goshen Census Statistics.

The ARGUS is indebted to Dr. Harvey Everett for copies of two very interesting old papers, the Orange County Gazette and Public Advertiser of Nov. 30th, 1813, and the Orange County Patriot or the Spirit of 'Seventy-six, of December 10th, 1821. Both papers were published at Goshen, the former by Elliott Hopkins and the latter by T. B. Crowell. The papers are five column sheets and contain scarcely any local news and for that matter scarcely any news of any kind, for although the war of 1812 was in progress when the Gazette was printed, a few lines tell the situation on the frontier and most of its columns are devoted to estimates of the British forces in Canada, to proving that although the American brig Argus was captured by His Majesty's ships Leonidas and the Pelican, the Argus got the better of the fight, and to a eulogy of Commodore Chauncey. The whole second page is surrendered to a dispute between Gov. Martin Chittenden, of Vermont, and the militia of his State. Gov. Chittenden, who seems to have been the Altgeld of that time, was in a state of mind because part of the brigade of Vermont militia had been ordered out of the State by a United States officer and "marched to the defence of a sister State (New York), fully competent for all purposes of self-defence." The Governor, who seems to have been a great stickler for State rights, had issued a proclamation commanding the militiamen to return to Vermont and the militiamen in a long reply told the Governor, in effect, that he was an old driveler, that they would not obey his order that having been called out for the defence of the Union and being part of the Army of the United States they must obey the commands of its officers. Quoting from the Governor's proclamation that they "are outside the jurisdiction or control of the executive of Vermont" they score quite a point against him by asking him how he expects to enforce his proclamation.

That there is nothing new under the sun is proved by an article in the [illegible] denunciation of a butter trust—a foul scheme to "engross" the butter of Orange and adjacent counties. The Gazette's article is [illegible], but it seems to have charged in a former issue that the Bank of Newburgh was backing the trust. The Newburgh bank resented the imputation, and the article [illegible] in the Gazette seems to have been prepared in [illegible] to shifting re[illegible] for the nefarious scheme [illegible] the butter of this [illegible] on the "Goshen Butter in Goshen, which has [illegible] the county with [illegible] the "Goshen Butter" of Orange County [illegible] butter makers, as they were usually called, were famous for half a century. The names of the parties in the butter trust had evidently been supplied the Gazette but its editor had not the nerve to print them, for they are all left blank. They are all denounced as "peace men" or Federalists, and beyond this the editor's power of vituperation apparently could not go.

They had combines in those far away days, too, for the Gazette contains an advertisement of a general meeting of the blacksmiths of Orange county at Col John Tuthill's inn, Goshen, on Dec 8th, "for the purpose of regulating their charges for smith work."

The Orange County Patriot surrenders six and a half columns to the address of Hector Craig, President of the Orange County Agricultural Society, made before the society Oct. [illegible] Mr Craig was extensively engaged in manufacturing at Craigville, and like manufacturers of the present day wanted protection for the infant industry that was making him rich, and his speech was an elaborate argument to prove that the farmers of Orange county ought to willingly be taxed for the benefit of manufacturers

The most interesting news item in [illegible] of the Patriot is a copy [illegible] Boudinot, a pious [illegible] Burlington, N. J., who [illegible] other charitable bequests left [illegible] the New Jersey Bible Society [illegible] spectacles for the [illegible] persons, to en[illegible] read the scriptures," [illegible] Warren [illegible] the society estab[illegible] of New York for [illegible] of the [illegible] also publishes a [illegible] statistics of [illegible] 1820, which [illegible] in the town [illegible] the value of $250, eight had freeholds to the value of $50 and 184 rented tenements to the value of $5. They were industrious people in those days for in a year there were manufactured in families 4,050 yards of fulled cloth, 2,887 yards of flannel or other unfulled cloth and 9,326 yards of linen and cotton. There were in the town two grist mills, five saw mills, one filling mill, one cotton and woolen mill and four asheries.

By far the most interesting part of these old papers is their advertising columns, which give us a glimpse of the lives and customs of the people of those days, for which we look in vain in the columns devoted to news and editorial comment. There is so much of interest concerning these advertisements that I will not attempt it to-day, but, as the story papers say, this article will be "continued in our next."

Hiram Osterhout, who is to be tried at Monticello, next week, for the Bushville murders, is very moody and melancholy and is doing his best to make it appear that he is insane. District Attorney Hill is confident that he has evidence enough to secure a conviction.

A Woman Hung

Around the neck of her husband and begged and implored him to go immediately and reserve seats for the pretty and young soubrette, Lillian Kennedy, in "She Couldn't Marry Three.". Few actresses at her age are endowed with such transcendent talent, in the whole range of the drama she shines resplendent, exciting tears or laughter at will, and with an ease and absence of effort that disarms criticism.

She sings a ballad or comic song, dances a graceful skirt dance or breakdown, and all she does is imbued with the spirit of an innate artist, thorough musician, endowed with youth and uncommon beauty, she seems destined at no distant day to reach the [illegible] pinnacle of dramatic eminence.

TELEPHONE LINE IMPROVEMENTS.

Stringing Wire for a Metallic Circuit Between This City and Newburgh.

The Hudson River Telephone Company has had considerable trouble with its system since the electric road began operations. The induction has been so great as to render communication by telephone extrmely exasperating to subscribers.

The difficulty can, however, largely be obviated by the use of what is known as a metallic circuit, and the company has decided to adopt it. The work of stringing a copper wire for the new circuit between this city and Goshen was commenced, this morning.

THE WORKING GIRL.

Miss Sallie Palmer Gives Some Suggestions to Girls About Backache, Faintness, and Dizziness.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Did you ever notice working girls on their way home from stores or factories? Did you notice how many of them had pale checks, dull eyes, and heavy steps? and did you wonder why they were not ruddy and bright? The story which is told by Miss Sallie Palmer, of Nicetown, Pa., gives the reason for this sad condition of many working girls.

Sometimes their back and sides will ache terribly. They are faint and dizzy with pain and weight in the lower part of their stomach. They watch the clock, and wish that the day would end, as they feel so ill and tired.

Standing all day, week in and week out, they have slowly drifted into woman's great enemy, displacement of the womb. That, or some other derangement of the organ, causes irregularity or suspension of the "monthly periods," bloating, flooding or nervous prostration.

"Take warning in time," she says; "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the surest and safest remedy in the world for you."

INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC

Commencing first week in Sept. The practice of singing correctly is calculated to bring about the healthy action and development of [illegible] which otherwise would have lain dormant, and the breathing exercises are of the [illegible] to those inclined to pulmonary [illegible] Write me or call at Middletown Music Store at [illegible] time assigned you for a trial [illegible] sold by us from a little Knee Pants to the largest Suit or Overcoat.

We buy all our cloths direct from the manufacturer, and, therefore, know exactly what kind of goods we sell. Every article of clothing that we offer for sale, we show you the same goods in the whole piece and you can readily see what goods you are buying. If you want an extra pair of Pants or Vest or any garment, you can always get it from us, as we keep sufficient cloth in stock of the same goods that we sell in suit, to accommodate our customers to replenish their clothing in this way,—be it in a Man's Suit, Boys' Suit or Child's Suit.
